ESPS Manuscript NO: 28666

Manuscript Type: Evidence-Based Medicine

Dear Editor and the reviewers,

Thank you for your consideration of our manuscript. The three reviewers investigated the original manuscript, to find there are no particular errors or misconducts in our study. One of the reviewers suggested our manuscript should be more polished to improve the readability as an English paper. Therefore, we consulted a proof-reading company again to get our manuscript improved through entire examination by a native English speaker. Here I have attached a file which certifies that this revised manuscript has been established written in prompt English language.

Thanks again for considering our manuscript for your journal. I believe this new version will be accepted and attract many readers' attention.

By the way, I confirm that all of the co-authors have approved the revised manuscript via online communication. However, one of the co-authors is out now for attending an academic conference. She will come back next week, but at present she cannot make a signature to the assignment form. I will send the complete form as soon as possible after meeting her. Please accept my excuse.

Sincerely,

On behalf of authors,

Akihiro Shiina
