

Nationwide treatment and outcomes in patients hospitalized for esophageal achalasia in the United States

Daniela Molena ‡, M.D., Benedetto Mungo ‡, M.D., Miloslawa Stem ¶, M.S., Anne O. Lidor ¶,
M.D., M.P.H.

‡ Division of Thoracic Surgery, Department of Surgery, Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine, Baltimore, MD, USA.

¶ Department of Surgery, Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine, Baltimore, MD, USA.

ID (00058135)

I am a person with a master's or doctoral degree (or equivalent) in biostatistics or related field. I have experience in the design, analysis and interpretation of biomedical data of the type used in this paper. I take scientific responsibility for the analysis and interpretation of the data presented in the final version of this manuscript.

Statistician's signature:

Miloslawa Stem