

Clinical trial registration statement

It is a prospective observation study rather than clinical trial. All patients received nucleoside (acid) analogues according to the guidelines and bought by themselves. We hadn't carried out any intervention with patients during the treatment.

The aim of the study was to investigate whether hepatitis viral DNA load at 24 weeks of treatment predicts response at 96 weeks in patients with chronic hepatitis B.

We are so sorry that it is our error to choose the wrong type of article when submitting the manuscript.
