Clival metastasis of renal clear cell carcinoma: case report and literature review

Wei-Qi Zhang, Yue Bao, Bo Qiu, Yong Wang, Zhi-Peng Li, Yi-Bao Wang

Abstract

The clivus is an atypical metastatic site for renal clear cell carcinoma (RCCC). We here report a 54-year-old man with acute cavernous sinus syndrome. Brain magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) identified a clival-based lesion with associated bony erosion. The patient underwent endoscopic endonasal biopsy
