

per.nasman@nasman.com

I dag, 09:41

Paul Gerdhem

Svara |

Hej Paul.

As stated in the article there is no methodological standard to calculate inter- and intra-rater reliability.

The authors choose to use Cohen's kappa in their study in order to be able to compare with refereed similar studies.

I think this is a good approach and the calculations seem to be correct. All analyses were carried out by use of the SPSS system.

Per

Statement made by Per Näsman
Associate professor and statistician
Royal School of Technology
Stockholm, Sweden