Prevention of overuse: A view on upper gastrointestinal endoscopy de Jong J J et al. Strategies to reduce upper gastrointestinal endoscopy

Judith J de Jong, Marten A Lantinga, Joost PH Drenth

Abstract

Many upper gastrointestinal (GI) endoscopies worldwide are performed for inappropriate indications. This overuse of healthcare negatively affects healthcare quality and puts pressure on endoscopy services. Dyspepsia is one of the most common inappropriate indications for upper GI endoscopy as diagnostic yield is low. Reasons for untimely referral are: unfamiliarity with dyspepsia guidelines, uncertainty about etiology of symptoms, and therapy failure. Unfiltered open-access referrals feed upper GI endoscopy overuse. This review highlights strategies applied
