Title: Safety and Efficacy of Over-the-Scope Clip-assisted Full Thickness Resection of Duodenal Subepithelial Tumors: A case report and review of the literature

You are being asked to consider allowing Bruno Ribeiro MD and his team to use information about your medical condition and endoscopic procedure, and to write what is called a case report. Case reports are used to share new unique information experienced by patients during their clinical care that may be useful for other physicians and health care providers. A case report may be published in print or electronically for other to read or presented at a conference.

- (1) The Material will be published without the patient's name, date of birth, date of service, address, medical record number or any other identifiers. However I understand that complete anonymity cannot be guaranteed. It is possible that somebody somewhere - for example, somebody who looked after me/the patient or a relative - may recognize my case.
- (2) The Material may show or include details of my/the patient's medical condition or injury and any prognosis, treatment or surgery that I have/the patient has, had or may have in the future.
- (3) The article may be published in a journal which is distributed worldwide. The publications go mainly to doctors and other healthcare professionals but are also seen by many others including academics, students and journalists.
- (4) I/the patient will not receive any financial benefit from publication of the article. The article may also be used in full or in part in other publications and products published. This includes publication in English and in translation, in print, in digital formats, and in any other formats that may be now and in the future. The article may appear in local editions of journals or other publications, published in the USA and overseas.
- (5) I can revoke my consent at any time before publication, but once the article has been committed to publication ("gone to press") it will not be possible to revoke the consent.
- (6) This consent form will be retained securely and in confidence

I have read the above and consent.
