angioectasia, Dieulafoy's lesion and arteriovenous malformation, their etiology and pathogenesis, diagnosis and treatment. In addition, they also suggest the diagnostic and management strategies for these small bowel lesions. The review is well organized and accompanied by appropriate figures. However, I would suggest improving the conclusion validity. In conclusion, this is a very interesting review that will be of interest to the readers of the journal .

SPECIFIC COMMENTS TO AUTHORS

The primary concern is lack of novelty. However, the authors give an excellent overview of the topic. Title: May be changed to Diagnosis and therapeutic strategies for small bowel vascular lesions. Some terms are introduced suddenly like P1 and P2. Other problems with Tc labelled RBC scans including difficulty in localisation of site of bleed.
