

Biostatistics Review Certificate

All of the statistic work in this study, entitled “Comparison between the Therapeutic Effects of Differentiated and Undifferentiated Wharton's Jelly Mesenchymal Stem Cells in Rats with Streptozotocin-induced Diabetes”, has been approved by The Biostatistics Task Force with the Department of Medical Research at Taipei Veterans General Hospital. The primary object of the Biostatistics Task Force is to provide statistical assisting in medical research including review and design of protocols, statistical analysis and scientific paper writing. This force is consists of specialists and consultants from many departments. The activities include statistical design of the studies; development of data collection forms and manuals of procedures; data management; statistical analysis and interpretation; development of new statistical methodology; and preparation of statistical and scientific reports and publications.