SPECIFIC COMMENTS TO AUTHORS

This is a very interesting manuscript regarding POEM, written by experts on the field. I recommend changing the title to "Advances in Peroral Endoscopic Myotomy and variations of the procedure". However, the authors are requested to explain a little better the difference between the different types of the procedure. One or two more pictures or schemes could help. What do they mean by the term open poem? Is this type of procedure performed in cases of sigmoid achalasia or can it be performed in every case? How is it possible to leave open the mucosal defect without having an increased rate of infections? Does the mucosal defect close by itself? A more detailed description of the procedures could answer these questions. In addition a detailed description of any potential complications would be of help (eg cases of severe bleeding, mediastinitis, any deaths). The authors could also mention any efforts (under development) to reduce gastroesophageal reflux by complex procedures of suturing of the gastric fundus.
