Abstract

The current pandemic due to the severe acute respiratory syndrome coronavirus 2 (SARS-CoV-2) has caused an extreme burden for health care systems globally, and the number of cases is expected to continue to increase, at least in the immediate future. The virus is estimated to have infected more than 1.5 million individuals. The available reports suggest that gastrointestinal (GI) involvement in coronavirus disease-2019 (COVID-19) is common and in some cases the GI
