In response to reviewer comments:

Thank you very much for your review of our manuscript and for your comments. Where we were currently able to improve our submission, efforts were made to do so. The concluding paragraph is now formally separated from the discussion, and the Article Highlights section has been added after the concluding paragraph of the manuscript. Please find a Word document containing the tables and a PowerPoint document containing a modifiable format for Figure 1. An explanation of informed consent for this study was provided, though we welcome further comments and questions on this document if it is not sufficient. The STROBE checklist was updated to include page numbers indicating where information fitting the main categories of the checklist can be found in our manuscript.

Regarding the comments made in the Reviewer #1 report, your insights were greatly appreciated, and we strongly agree that methods could be improved. Our study was limited by use of an electronic medical record that is not well-suited to research on this subject, but we hope the descriptions provided will inspire future research that will improve upon our work.

Thank you for your insight and for giving us this opportunity to resubmit our manuscript with the needed changes. We appreciate your interest in this subject and the opportunity to share our research with readers of the World Journal of Dermatology.
