SPECIFIC COMMENTS TO AUTHORS

Hello Thank you for an interesting and important manuscript. I have only one comment:

1. In title you write that your manuscript is a literature review also but amount of references are too short for literature review and information about this problem ins not enough for review. Please change title or make literature part longer. Best regards

SPECIFIC COMMENTS TO AUTHORS

I think the rapport is interesting including radiography and intra-operative photo on this rare complication after TAPP repair , but the literature review in the discussion is very short, without a deeply discussion of the different ways of close the peritoneal incision and the type of complications related to those different methods. Some specific comments are the following: 1. What means about “traditional surgery” in the first sentence of the abstract? suture repair or open mesh repair? . Open mesh repair is considered nowadays the most common approach for hernia repair. TAPP has no lower recurrences or complication rates than open mesh repair in the literature. 2. In the Discussion you write “However, if used improperly, the barbs may be attached to the adjacent small intestine, mesentery, or omentum”. Means you that the cause of this case rapport was an inappropriately use of the V-loc in the TAPP repair or is it possible that this type of complication can occur even when you use the V-loc appropriately? 3. Was the site of the adhesion in the middle or in the end of the peritoneal suturing line?

Dear authors, Thank you for letting me re-review your manuscript. It is clear that you have made a great effort to improve the manuscript in accordance with the comments from the reviewers. The issues that I addressed in my initial review have all been resolved. However, I would still recommend some minor language polishing of the manuscript, especially of the newly added paragraphs. Thank you.
