This is an interesting paper for doctors with general level of knowledge in this field, as a general information on the topic. Please make the following corrections Page 3 – replace past with last Page 4 – replace chronification with – to become chronic Page 5 – 71 million of HCV (not HDV) Page 13 - more information about HDV treatment and new development in this field – the frequency of this disease is increasing in the world (due to immigration) Page 13up – immigration for HDV endemic region (not HCV) Page 16 – conclusions – replace advent with results

SPECIFIC COMMENTS TO AUTHORS

The current review aimed to summarize the current and future treatment options of viral hepatitis, so the authors should discuss in details all the available and recent approved treatment for hepatitis. However, they forget to write about some drugs such as - The authors didn't comment on Lamivudine therapy for HBV. - The author didn't mention the other medications which have been recently approved to treat certain genotypes of hep C. For example, • Harvoni (ledipasvir/sofosbuvir) is approved for genotypes 1, 4, 5, and 6. • Technivie (ombitasvir/paritaprevir/ritonavir) is approved for genotype 4. • Zepatier (elbasvir/grazoprevir) is approved for genotypes 1 and 4. - Also, the author didn't mention the New Hepatitis Delta Treatment (Hepbtaik) which has been approved by European Commission on September 2, 2020 in Europe
