When LVAD patients present with GIB, current guidelines recommend a colonoscopy or upper endoscopic exam as part of the diagnostic evaluation, with further consideration to evaluate the small bowel. In patients presenting with recurrent bleeding, repeated endoscopic evaluation may be warranted to identify a potential site for intervention.²⁴ Adjustments to LVAD parameters have included decreasing pump speed under echocardiographic monitoring in an effort to generate pulsatility while maintaining a...

Discussion

Conclusions

We reviewed the records of patients with a VAD implanted at the University of Alabama at Birmingham University Hospital between January 1, 2000, and December 31, 2010. All patients with a VAD who were 19 years of age or older were included in the study. We reviewed patient medical records for evidence of GIB events that required hospitalization or occurred during hospitalization in the time period in which their VAD was in place. The closing date for inclusion of a GIB event was set as May 31, 2011. A GIB event w...
