Based on the requested requirement of Non-Native Speakers of English Editing Certificate, we would like to report that the National Instituto of Medical Sciences and Nutrition has a Language Department with native experts in different languages, including English. This department is responsible for consulting, editing and formatting research articles for scientific outreach.

They conducted an extensive review of the article titled "Emerging Therapeutics Options in Inflammatory Bowel Disease" for The World Journal of Gastroenterology. We are not authorized to use language services in companies outside this Institute.

Finally, a new revised version marked in yellow was reviewed and edited by our department.
