SPECIFIC COMMENTS TO AUTHORS

In their manuscript, authors reported two clinical cases with synchronous diagnosis of acute myeloid leukemia (AML) and chronic lymphocytic leukemia (CLL). First, authors provided background information about the current types of diagnosis and treatment of these disease. Finally, authors present two clinical cases. Generally, the paper is well composed. It's easy to read in some parts. The title and abstract reflect the work described in the manuscript. There are no incorrectly numbered figures. The references are concise respect to the topic addressed.
