SPECIFIC COMMENTS TO AUTHORS

The topic of this manuscript falls within the scope of World Journal of Clinical Cases. The Authors reported a case of MEN 1 combined with Papillary Thyroid Carcinoma (PTC) and nodular goiter. Parathyroidectomy (two parathyroid glands) and unilateral right thyroid lobectomy and central lymph nodes was performed. I have some questions for the Authors: 1. Why in the case of MEN 1 was not performed a sub-total parathyroidectomy or a total parathyroidectomy with parathyroid tissue autotransplantation? 2. How was the patient's therapy in post-operative time to correct any hypocalcemia? 3. Why was the patient not submitted to left hemithyroidectomy (for the presence of lymph node metastases of central compartment) and then submitted to radioiodiotherapy?
