Manuscript Title:

Comparative study of surface electromyography of masticatory muscles in patients with different types of bruxism

Date of Revision:

April 22, 2022

Abstract:

BACKGROUND

Bruxism is a rhythmic masticatory muscle activity that occurs involuntarily in a non-physiologically functional state. There is a lack of research classifying the functional status of masticatory muscles in patients with different mandibular movement types (centric clenching or eccentric grinding) of bruxism.

AIM

To assess the differences of the masticatory muscle activity in patients with different types of bruxism.

METHODS

A total of 21 subjects in the centric bruxism (CB) group and 21 subjects in the eccentric bruxism (ECB) group were screened from college students according to a questionnaire and their tooth wear...
