

This study utilized SEER cancer incidence and mortality data from population-based cancer registries covering approximately 47.9 percent of the U.S. population which did not require a specific informed consent.