Importance of the telemedicine network for neurosurgery in Slovenia

Tomaz Velnar, Tilen Zele, Roman Bosnjak

Abstract

The number of invasive procedures in medicine is increasing, as is the employment of new technological achievements. In the era of information-communication technology, one such achievement is also the telemedicine network. In Slovenia, it is known as the Telekap (TeleStroke) network, which was primarily designed for fast and efficient management of stroke patients. In the neurosurgical community, the
