<https://www.sciencedirect.com/science/article/pii/S0039625715001113>

Nov 01, 2015 · Since the first reported use in 2001 of an anti-tumor necrosis factor-alpha (TNF- $\alpha$ ) agent, infliximab, for the treatment of uveitis, several new anti-TNF- $\alpha$  agents have emerged for the treatment of refractory noninfectious uveitides, although their use remains off-label in the US.

Anti-tumor necrosis factor (anti-TNF) agents are successful therapies in rheumatoid arthritis (RA); however, inadequate response occurs in 30–40% of patients treated. Knowledge of the genetic factors that influence response may facilitate personalized therapy.
