SPECIFIC COMMENTS TO AUTHORS

General Comments: This paper is a review on Management of Breech Presentation, showing all clinical scenarios of breech and to provide an evidence-based clinical approach for them. After discussing breech prevalence, risk factors, diagnosis, and its management, an updated review of ECV is presented. Moreover, ECV indications/contraindications, alternatives, clinical techniques on how to perform ECV and breech vaginal delivery, and obstetrical considerations for the delivery of malpresentations are thoroughly discussed. Generally speaking, there are no obvious loopholes in review. Comments This paper is just a pure paper, there is no great innovation

SPECIFIC COMMENTS TO AUTHORS

1.On the second part of Introduction,“The most common malpresentation is Breech (foot-first)”, I think it should be instead as “The most common malpresentation is Breech (hip-first)”. 2.On the second part of Methods,“Breech” should be written as” breech presentation”. 3.Please standardize the format of references.Some references have “doi”and “PMID” while some haven't.
