Dear Editor:

Please find enclosed the edited manuscript in Word format (file name: ESPS Ms NO 11856-Review Revised-Follicular Contact Dermatitis-WJCC 7-20-14)

Title: Follicular Contact Dermatitis Revisited: A Review Emphasizing Neomycin-Associated Follicular Contact Dermatitis

Author: Philip R. Cohen

Name of Journal: World Journal of Clinical Cases

ESPS Manuscript NO: 11856

I again want to thank you for the letter of March 28, 2014 and the acknowledgement of my “outstanding contribution to the field of clinical research.” I also appreciate the invitation to me “to write a review article for the special issue of World Journal of Clinical Cases (WJCC).” I also appreciate that the publication fee has been waived: “it will be free of charge upon acceptance of the paper for publication.

I respectfully submit the revised version of the above referenced manuscript to the World Journal of Clinical Cases as a review. As requested, the manuscript has been improved to the suggestions of the reviewers and the editor:

1.The format and typesetting have been updated. The paper is in Book Antiqua font of size 10 with ample margins and typed in 1.5 line spacing. The name of the revised files is listed above.

2.The references have been corrected. The PMID number has been added for all references. The DOI number has been obtained from crossref.org and also added; however, there are about 5 references for which crossref.org did not have a DOI number (and this has been designated).

3.Also, as recommended by the editor, I have put the number of the references in Arabic numerals according to the citation order in the text and I have put the reference numbers in square brackets in superscript at the end of the citation content or after the cited author's name. For citation content which is part of the narration, the coding number and square brackets are typeset normally.

4.I have removed the editor's comments from the revised manuscript.

5.Figure 4b was not included in the edited manuscript that I received. I have uploaded all of the figures, including figure 4b.

6.I am very appreciate of the favorable comments by each of the reviewers. Both reviewers awarded the manuscript as follows: classification = Grade B (Very good), language evaluation = Grade A (priority publishing), and conclusion = Accept.

Reviewer 02508408 comments to authors: This is an interesting review article discussing the occurrence of follicular contact dermatitis secondary to neomycin use. The manuscript is well-organized, the literature review was thorough, and the topic is of clinical relevance to the dermatological community.

Reviewer 02976846 comments to authors: Dr. Cohen reviewed the clinical and pathological features, the associated chemicals, the hypothesized pathogenesis, and the management of follicular contact dermatitis in the manuscript, emphasizing Neomycin-associated follicular contact dermatitis. This review provides some useful information for the clinicians, who are interested in this area.

I sincerely hope that my manuscript is now in suitable form for publication in the Journal. If there are any additional recommendations, please feel welcome to contact me.

Thank you for your consideration of my manuscript for publication in the World Journal of Clinical Cases.

Sincerely,

Philip R. Cohen, M.D.
