

Dear Editor,

Thank you very much for the comments and suggestions of the reviewers about our paper “Dietary approach in the treatment of nonalcoholic fatty liver disease”. Authors: Silvia M Ferolla, Luciana C Silva, Maria L A Ferrari, Aloísio S Cunha, Flaviano S Martins, Cláudia A Couto, Teresa C A Ferrari. They actually improved our article. We agreed with all of them, and made the modifications as described below and marked in the text.

Reviewer #1

1.1 “The review is focussed on NAFLD which is a highly relevant condition in today's society. It is mostly very well written. Please see the attached document with some tracked changes. In addition, please carefully check the remainder of the review for other grammatical and spelling errors.”

1.2. All grammatical and typing errors were corrected. Furthermore, English language and style were revised by a colleague who speaks English as a first language.

Reviewer #2

1.1 “To authors this is a very elaborated review. I have no objection to this publication. The only objections are Simple steatosis I suggest only steatosis because it is up for debate whether it should be considered simple. And second Per se rather per si.”

1.2 We replaced the term “simple steatosis” for the word “steatosis” and the term “per si” for the term “per se”.

Reviewer #3

1.1 The article is limited to the approach of the diet cure for non-alcoholic fatty liver. I think that the contents are gathered up. Minor language polishing. 2

1.2 In fact, the aim of this review article is to review and analyze the literature on dietary approach in the treatment of nonalcoholic fatty liver disease. English language and style has been revised by a colleague who speaks English as a first language.
