RESPONSE:

Thank you for your review. Regarding your specific considerations, we have addressed them as follow:

- 1 - serrated modified to serrated in order to properly refer to the WASP classification;
- 2 - The sentence has been split in half;
- 3 - the space between polyps and achieved had been inserted.

Thank you once more for your time and effort in improving our manuscript.

RESPONSE:

Thank you for your review. We have addressed the manuscript as a narrative review, what can sometimes be used as an editorial. We did not intend in this manuscript to perform a systematic review with all the methodology that it requires (for instance using the PRISMA statement from the York University). Finally, we do not think it will be an issue if the Editors intend to use our manuscript as an editorial, and changes can be made in order to adapt it better if required. As it is now, with the Editors changing its type to "TOPIC HIGHLIGHT", probably describes it better.

Thank you once more for your time and effort in improving our manuscript.
