

RE: Response to the reviewers
ESPS Manuscript NO: 29853

8th of November, 2016

Dear Dr Jin-Xin Kong,

I am writing regarding the resubmission of the editorial letter entitled: The effect of diet on the progression of chronic liver disease. I am appreciate the suggestion from the reviewers and I would like to thank you for your editorial input and for extending my re-submission time. I have addressed the point raised from the first reviewer and marked a few changes in red throughout the resubmitted manuscript. Please, find my response to the reviewer below.

I accept responsibility for the contents of the amended manuscript. Please find attached the conflict of interest, copyright assignment forms and the audio file of the summary. Please, let me know if I need to change any of these documents.

I am looking forward to receiving your comments as to the suitability of this article for publication in the World Journal of Hepatology and I am happy to make any further changes to the manuscript if required.

Yours sincerely,

Lemonica Koumbi, MSc, PhD

Research Fellow
Imperial College London
Department of Medicine
Hepatology and Gastroenterology Section
Variety Wing Floor D, St. Mary's Campus
Norfolk Place
London W2 1PG
E-mail: lemonica.koumbi@gmail.com
Tel. +44 (0) 207 594 9022

To the editor:

Journal Style Requirements:

I adjusted the headings and format of reference style according to the requirements of the World Journal of Hepatology, for which I downloaded the endnote editorial style.

Response to Reviewer # 13033,

Q. A mainly well-written paper, the only comment is that the author should include a table showing the major studies/outcomes on the topic

A. Thank you very much for your valuable comment. I have added a table to summarize the main findings from studies on the topic.