

Institutional Review Board statement

Ethical approval was not required, since the stapler diverticulotomy is an individual expanded access. The diverticulotomy was performed after patients were informed about possible complications, alternative treatment options and they had given their informed consent.