Tattoos as a window to the psyche: How talking about skin art can inform psychiatric practice

Hannah Roggenkamp, Andrew Nicholls, Joseph M Pierre

Abstract

Tattooing the skin as a means of personal expression is a ritualized practice that has been around for centuries across many different cultures. Accordingly, the symbolic meaning of tattoos has evolved over time and is highly individualized, from both the internal perspective of the wearer and the external perspective of an observer. Within modern Western societies through the 1970s, tattoos represented a cultural taboo, typically associated with those outside of the
