I confirm that I have read and evaluated the use of statistical methodology in the article

Ischemia/Reperfusion Injury in Porcine Intestine - Viability Assessment

Strand-Amundsen et al. Viability assessment in porcine jejunum

The authors were recommended to make several minor changes which they made in the final manuscript. It is now approved, and I do not have any further statistical considerations.

I have worked as a biostatistician for over 10 years and have published over 150 articles. In addition to being an associated professor at Oslo Metropolitan University I also work as a statistical reviewer for Endoscopy so I have a broad experience as a applied medical statistician.
