The title should be refined to better reflect the content that it is associated with reproductive risks. The cases should be better wrapped up. The number of figures should be reduced. A discussion including similar studies in other communities could be appealing. The number of references could be increased to suit an original article.

The authors of the submitted manuscript intend to report on six families with balanced chromosome translocation in Hainan Province. The following points are suggested for further consideration. 1. The title is suggesgtd to be modified as "A report of six families with balanced chromosome translocation associated with reproductive risks in Hainan Province". 2. "reproductive risk" is suggested to be included as one of the keywords. 3. Can the authors provide the data of the frequency of the balanced chromosome translocation in Hainan Province or other regional area in China or in the world? 4. Some typo errors need attention.
