SPECIFIC COMMENTS TO AUTHORS

1.While paper is understandable, it requires editing to improve English, as there some stylistic and grammatical mistakes. e.g 'as it an increased use of anticoagulants?' in the section of introduction. 2.The title is not specific, and it is better to describe as 'Intramuscular hematoma in rhabdomyolysis patients treated with low molecular weight heparin: two case reports' 3.Most patients with rhabdomyolysis can be cured by discontinuation of fibrates, or in combination with hydration, alkalinization and diuresis. Heparin sodium is excreted through the kidney, so the risk of bleeding is increased in patients with renal insufficiency. The level of creatinine for case 1 was 192  $\mu\text{mol/L}$ , why CRRT and subsequent heparinized anticoagulation was performed? 4.The coagulation function after bleeding was not monitored, and the secondary coagulation dysfunction can not be ruled out completely.
