

Specific Comments to Authors:

This case report introduces a magnet-based way to eliminate Intralenticular foreign body in the anterior cortex. Generally speaking, the work of this report is complete and effective. However, there are some issues that need to be further improved:

(1) The Abstract and Introduction are not comprehensive and need to be polished. Please add more appropriate citations and highlight the importance of your work.

Answer:

Thanks for your suggestion, and we have added related content in the revised version.

(2) More motivation/context regarding the application side of your treatment should be added, particularly on the aspects that make this technique particularly suited for clinical application scenarios.

Answer:

Thanks for your suggestion, and we have added related content in the revised version.

(3) The problems encountered in the process of treatment should be summarized and analysed in the Discussion, since these information are crucial for the readers.

Answer:

Thanks for your suggestion, and we have added related content in the revised version.

(4) Review the details of the entire text. For example, the explanation is needed when the abbreviation appears firstly in the report ( e.g., the FB was pushed to the equator of the lens).

Answer:

Thanks for your suggestion, and we have reviewed the details of the entire text and revised related content in the revised version.
