COVID-19 mortality and gross domestic product loss: A wake-up call for government leaders

Sakuraba A et al. COVID-19 and GDP

Atsushi Sakuraba, Toshiro Sato

Abstract

Government leaders have struggled to reduce the infection and deaths due to coronavirus disease 2019 (COVID-19) as well as to keep the economy and businesses open. There is a large variation of mortality and damage to economy among countries. One possible cause leading to the large variation is the manner in which countries have dealt with COVID-19. Some countries such as China, New Zealand, and Taiwan, acted quickly and aggressively by implementing border closures, lockdown, school closures,
