To whom it may concern

I, Dr Mariusz Duplaga, University Professor, specialist in internal medicine, respiratory medicine and public health confirm that statistical analysis for the paper titled: "The determinants of disease-specific knowledge – the results of a Polish IBD-KID multicentre study." was carried out according to the requirements of the multivariate regression modelling and complies with the good practices in biostatistics.

Furthermore, I should add that the speciality of public health in Poland requires in depth knowledge and experience in methodologies in biostatistics and practical use of key methods in published research.
