This is a well written case review, on a quite rare presentation.

SPECIFIC COMMENTS TO AUTHORS

The manuscript fits the above listed criteria even if the topic is so rare that it could be interpreted just like an episode without any impact on current clinical practice. I think this case report description doesn't add any finding to the comprehension of the breast cancer clinical course. The revision of specific literature is appropriate.

SPECIFIC COMMENTS TO AUTHORS

Interesting case. However, the number of references should be minimized, and more recent reports should be referred to.

I agree with your revision. Manuscript is surely more interesting and correctly written than the former.
