How does the environment influence drug and alcohol addiction?

How is addiction created and maintained by factors external to the individual?

Addiction

Addiction is a brain disorder characterized by compulsive engagement in rewarding stimuli despite adverse consequences. Despite the involvement of a number of psychosocial factors, a biological process—one that is induced by repeated exposure to an addictive stimulus—is the core pathology that drives the development and maintenance of an addiction, according to the "brain disease model" of addiction. However, some scholars who study addiction argue that the brain disease model is incomplete and misleading.

Oct 24, 2017 · Genetics and Environment: Which Causes Addiction? There has long been a debate about whether addiction is caused by a person's genetic makeup or the environment they inhabit. Researchers believe genetics can influence a person's predisposition toward addiction to substances once they begin using them. In other words, some people may have a gene or genetic component that predisposes them to addictive ...
