Reply：
Our study aims to present the epidemiological trends of PC in China over the past decade and predict estimated trend in 2025 via fitting linear regression models. We considered that lifestyle, environment, smoking, alcohol, obesity, dietary pattern, hereditary and genetic factors, poor diagnostic capacity and no workable modality of effective treatment might play a role in the international disparity.