

Editing Service Confirmation

To Whom It May Concern,

Our expert editing team, including myself, provided comprehensive grammatical editing services for the manuscript titled 'Derotational osteotomy and internal fixation of a 180° malrotated humerus: A case report and review of the literature', which is under consideration for publication in your journal.

My qualifications for professional editing and writing of scientific and medical articles span over 10 years. In that time, I have edited and written over 90,000 pages of scientific manuscripts (human, animal and in vitro studies) for submission to peer-reviewed publications. In addition, I am an active researcher and have published my own studies in many high impact factor journals, including Nature and the Science family of journals. I am a native English speaker with a PhD in Molecular Physiology & Biophysics from Vanderbilt University Medical School (Nashville, TN, USA) awarded in 2005. I have personally trained all of our editors and work alongside each during the editing process.

The editing process corrected all grammatical and language errors and addressed consistency and clarity of the content; the authors confirmed that the integrity of the content had been preserved by the edit.

Should you require any additional information, please do not hesitate to contact me directly.

Jennifer C van Velkinburgh, PhD
President and Chief Editor & Writer
Filipodia Publishing, LLC

Direct Email: jcv@filipodia.com

Website: www.filipodia.com