A very nice presentation of a case series presenting with 2 different outcomes among patients with a good description of diagnostic workup and different treatment given. The disease itself being rare following transplantation and describing the available papers are worth appreciating. And with good review of existing literatures on GIST following transplantation, your report is a valuable addition to the current literature. Well done. A very worthwhile read.

SPECIFIC COMMENTS TO AUTHORS

Gastrointestinal stromal tumors (GIST) are the most common mesenchymal tumors of the gastrointestinal tract. A higher risk of neoplasm has been described among renal transplant recipients (RTR). Nevertheless, only few cases of GIST's onset among transplanted patients have been reported. This paper reviews existing literature concerning GIST's occurrence in transplanted patients, which has certain guiding significance for clinical treatment. This paper intends to be novel, logically clear, and provides results that match the methods described. But there are also some content need to be added: 1.The title of this paper is "Gastrointestinal tumors in transplantation: report of two case reports and review of literature" . Why were cases of EGIST introduced in this paper. 2."We excluded reports of GIST occurring among non-transplanted patient or bone marrow transplanted patients." Was it better to include bone marrow transplant patients as a subclassification rather than exclusion? 3."Using these terms, we found 8 and 31 articles respectively. Only 12 articles were analyzed. " Please describe the search strategy for analyzing these articles.
