

Biostatistics statement

Title: Coxsackievirus A6 was the most common enterovirus serotype causing hand, foot, and mouth disease in Shiyan City, central China

The statistical methods of this study were reviewed by a researcher who was qualified for the biostatistical issues involved in this study.

Name: Changli Jia

Master of Social medicine and health service management

Signature:

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads "Changli Jia". The signature is written in a cursive style with a small dot above the 'i' in "Jia".

Contact information:

Affiliation and address: School of Health Sciences, Wuhan University, Donghu Road
115, Wuchang District, Wuhan 430071, China

E-mail: 390312841@qq.com

Telephone: +86-18271433655