

Due to the retrospective nature of this study, as well as the number of patients studied, the Institutional Review Board at Maimonides Medical Center waived the need to obtain informed consent from the patients whose charts were reviewed.