Reviewer #1

Issue 1: Thank you for submitting this case report. Is there is any other studies reporting the same findings? Thank you

Response: Thank you for your kind question. We have searched PubMed, CNKI, Web of Science, search strategy: "Chinese Pharmacist" OR "Pharmacist intervention" OR "Case report" OR "Kangfuxin Liquid", the selected publication time span is nearly 5 years. Our results show that although there are cases related to pharmacist intervention reported, most of them are concentrated in the fields of oncology and anti-infection, and there are almost no reports of county-level pharmacists in primary care institutions. At the same time, most of the research on rehabilitation new solution focuses on basic research and clinical trials, and the report on the individual efficacy of this combined proton pump inhibitor is the first time.

Therefore, this is the first case report that demonstrates the important role of pharmacists at county level in making therapeutic decisions. The experience of pharmacists can be an important aid in the dosage of antibiotics and the use of traditional Chinese medicine such as Kangfuxin Liquid. More importantly, our study provides a clinical basis for our next research on Kangfuxin Liquid combined with other drugs.

Additionally, we have made corrections to the author's name, supplemented and improved the latest cutting-edge work, and addressed some minor issues found, and these changes are highlighted.

We have thoroughly addressed all the concerns raised by the reviewer and editor-in-chief, and have made necessary revisions to address minor issues, aiming to elevate the manuscript to meet the rigorous publication standards. If you have any problem, don't hesitate to inform me.

Sincerely yours,

Yunhua Zheng
