Dear Sirs,

Thank you very much for your message communicating the outcome of the editorial review of my manuscript No 47086 entitled "Eosinophils in the gastrointestinal tract and their role in the pathogenesis of major colorectal disorders".

Having carefully examined brief and entirely positive comments of the three reviewers, I could not find any specific criticisms. For this reason, I carefully followed editorial recommendations regarding manuscript format and preparation of additional materials (provision of Audio core tip and an original set of illustrations in the original PowerPoint format). I have also checked the text and made some minor corrections improving language style and punctuation. I have also scrutinized reference list and made a few corrections. Specifically, I have added previously missing PMID & DOI information to reference 122 and modified references 213 & 234 (previously marked "in press" and now published). I have also checked reference 127, but it is still "in press".

All my changes are highlighted in yellow in the revised version of the manuscript.

I hope that the revised version of my review will be found suitable for publication.

Yours sincerely,

Dr Alexandre Loktionov
