Z Ma, SS Lee - Hepatology, 1996 - Wiley Online Library

Abstract In cirrhosis, cardiac contractile function has been extensively documented to be abnormal. At baseline, cardiac output is increased, and this is one of the characteristics of hyperdynamic circulation. However, when cirrhotic patients are challenged by ...

Cirrhotic cardiomyopathy: a pathophysiological review of circulatory dysfunction in liver disease

S Møller, JH Henriksen - Heart, 2002 - heart.bmj.com

Abstract The systemic circulation in patients with cirrhosis is hyperdynamic with an increased cardiac output and heart rate and a reduced systemic vascular resistance as the most pronounced alterations. The concomitant cardiac dysfunction has recently been ...

Cirrhotic cardiomyopathy.

SA Alqahtani, TR Fouad, SS Lee - Seminars in liver disease, 2008 - europepmc.org

Liver cirrhosis is associated with several cardiovascular abnormalities. Despite an increased baseline cardiac output, cirrhotic patients have a suboptimal ventricular response to stress. This phenomenon is called cirrhotic cardiomyopathy. The pathogenesis of this syndrome ...

Cirrhotic cardiomyopathy and liver transplantation

RP Myers, SS Lee - Liver Transplantation, 2000 - Wiley Online Library

Abstract Myocardial contractility in cirrhosis is impaired, particularly under stressful situations, in a phenomenon termed cirrhotic cardiomyopathy. Impairment of the cardiac β -adrenergic receptor and its signaling function appears to be involved in the pathogenesis ...

Role of altered beta-adrenoceptor signal transduction in the pathogenesis of cirrhotic cardiomyopathy in rats

Z Ma, A Miyamoto, SS Lee - Gastroenterology, 1996 - Elsevier

BACKGROUND & AIMS: Attenuated ventricular contractility has been documented in cirrhosis, but the pathogenesis remains unclear. The beta-adrenergic receptor system is critical in modulating cardiac contraction. Therefore, the aim of this study was to clarify ...
