

Re: Non-Native Speakers of English Editing Certificate

Dear Sirs,

All participating authors feel that this Certificate is not needed for our manuscript. I, as the corresponding author, have already co-authored more than 60 original papers published in PubMed and have served as a Research Fellow in the US for more than a year. Of note, we recently published another review article (Manuscript ID 63387) in the World Journal of Gastroenterology without the need for language polishing. In addition, both reviewers of our initial manuscript graded our work with "Grade A" (Priority publishing) regarding its language quality. Taken into account that the revision of our initial manuscript was minor, we believe that the acquisition of such a certificate is redundant.

Sincerely,

Emmanouil Sinakos
