Human epidermal growth factor receptor 2 testing in gastric cancer: An update

Lucas Faria Abrahao-Machado, Cristovam Scapulatempo-Neto

Abstract

Human epidermal growth factor receptor 2 (HER2) overexpression is increasingly recognized as a frequent molecular abnormality in gastric and gastroesophageal cancer. With the recent introduction of HER2 molecular targeted therapy for patients with advanced gastric cancer, determination of HER2 status is crucial in order to select patients who may benefit from this treatment. This paper provides an update on our knowledge of HER2 in gastric
