COMMENTS TO AUTHORS

In my opinion, most important about this cohort is the problem of insurance and medical coverage of the study subgroups. Therefore, the method of "adjusting the factor of insurance" in statistics should be answered in statistics section. But I believe if some people in a given sample are not equally reaching the medical care, but you sample them randomly and you adjust this inequality with an unknown statistical method retroactively; this is called bias..

COMMENTS TO AUTHORS

The manuscript titled "Race and colorectal cancer screening compliance among persons with a family history of cancer" is a well designed observational study that addressed a major issue about health behavior among different races. The authors managed to reveal this issue through extensive research and thorough statistical analysis. The paper has the ability to publish unaltered.
