COMMENTS TO AUTHORS

This manuscript aims to provide comprehensive review of cleaning of endoscopes and its importance. The manuscript specifically focuses on details of cleaning procedures, and statistical background (For example, incidence of infection caused by inadequate cleaning of endoscopes) and significance are provided well, which partly citing authors' previous studies. Major comments none Minor comments 1. I am just curious to know if enzymatic detergent solution is enough to disinfect human immunodeficiency virus (page 8). I guess this is well accepted in clinical practice of endoscopes. 2. English version of IRB may be submitted.

COMMENTS TO AUTHORS

Actuaally, it's an interesting and arresting topic for readers. The authors have performed vast prior work and achieved lots of experience. However, there are a few recommendations for you: in Page 4, the last sentence "Herein, present..... and so on" makes me confused, it would be better if you can express more clearly ; in Page 16, "colonendoscope" changed to " colonscope". Thank you.
