

The World Journal of Gastroenterology web site is loading much faster now

Jay Pravda

Jay Pravda, Inflammatory Disease Research Center, Gainesville, Florida 32614-2181, United States

Correspondence to: Jay Pravda, MD, Inflammatory Disease Research Center, Gainesville, Florida 32614-2181, United States. jaypravda@yahoo.com

Telephone: +1-352-5988866 Fax: +1-352-8547050

Received: 2007-01-27 Accepted: 2007-02-01

© 2007 The WJG Press. All rights reserved.

Pravda J. The World Journal of Gastroenterology web site is loading much faster now. World J Gastroenterol 2007; 13(9): 1471

<http://www.wjgnet.com/1007-9327/13/1471.asp>

Dear Xing-Xia Yang,

The World Journal of Gastroenterology (WJG) web site is loading much faster now. Thank you.

The WJG is unique in that it provides all its content free of charge for everyone to download. No other journal does this. This is the best way to disseminate information and ideas and is a critical factor that will make the WJG a very influential journal.

This goal can only be accomplished if everyone can download articles from the WJG easily and quickly. As such, the WJG depends much more on the internet than any other journal.

Feedback from the editorial board regarding the functionality of the WJG web site will enable the WJG to quickly correct internet connectivity problems in any part of the world and allow the WJG to maintain its position of preeminence as a leading world class journal.

S- Editor Liu Y E- Editor Ma WH